

NO. 5:14-CV-281-FL

constitutional violations and conspiracies against Wanda T. Williams (“Williams”), the mother of his child, and Nash County Department of Social Services (“DSS”). In addition to asserted constitutional violations, plaintiffs claim for malicious prosecution, emotional distress, and libel per se. Plaintiff seeks money damages.

On July 22, 2014, M&R and order was entered describing improprieties with respect to each defendant. DSS does not have the legal capacity to be sued. Williams’s status as a private person defeats any § 1983 claim, and, with respect to claims under 42 U.S.C. §§ 1985 and 1986, the magistrate judge highlights such defects in pleading that these claims also must be dismissed. For these reasons, the magistrate judge recommends that plaintiff’s complaint be dismissed as frivolous.

COURT’S DISCUSSION

Upon a careful review of the M&R, the court may “accept, reject, or modify, in whole or in part, the findings or recommendations made by the magistrate judge.” 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). The court does not perform a de novo review where a party makes only “general and conclusory objections that do not direct the court to a specific error in the magistrate’s proposed findings and recommendations.” Orpiano v. Johnson, 687 F.2d 44, 47 (4th Cir. 1982). Absent a specific and timely filed objection, the court reviews only for “clear error,” and need not give any explanation for adopting the M&R. Diamond v. Colonial Life & Acc. Ins. Co., 416 F.3d 310, 315 (4th Cir. 2005); Camby v. Davis, 718 F.2d 198, 200 (4th Cir. 1983). Upon careful review of the record, “the court may accept, reject, or modify, in whole or in part, the findings or recommendations made by the magistrate judge.” 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1).

The court, after carefully reviewing the M&R and the record, finds the analysis in the M&R to be thorough and cogent, and adopts it in full. The court is required to dismiss all or part of an action found to be frivolous or malicious, which fails to state a claim on which relief can be granted, or which seeks money damages from a defendant immune from such recovery. 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2); Michau v. Charleston County, 434 F.3d 725, 728 (4th Cir. 2006). A case is frivolous if it lacks an arguable basis in either law or fact. Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 325 (1989).

The complaint in this case is deficient, and must be dismissed where, for reasons described, defendant DSS is not a proper defendant. Similarly, the individual defendant cannot be the subject of an action under § 1983, under the circumstances presented, and plaintiff's pleading, as to remaining claims under 42 U.S.C. §§ 1985 and 1986, and any separately asserted constitutional violation, is so patently defective as to render dismissal necessary. While not minimizing plaintiff's expressed concerns about family issues arising, on these grounds, this federal lawsuit must be dismissed.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, the court ADOPTS the M&R in full, and DISMISSES plaintiff's complaint (DE 1) pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B).
